

English homework is due in on WEDNESDAY

Homework can be handwritten or word processed, try to get a balance of each. As well as the content, think carefully about:

- Spelling
- Punctuation
- Presentation

You can mail your work into school for it be printed.

Please stick your work in!

Ask for help in advance if you need it.

Enthusiastic Endeavours

Spring 2020 Part 1

This half term, you will take the lead and decide what you are going to write about. I would like you to choose a theme that you can write passionately about...maybe a hobby or pastime you enjoy or a sport. Remember to choose carefully...think about each writing task before you make your final decision.

Week One: Due in Wednesday 15th January

To kick start our homework topic, I would like you to write an acrostic poem about your chosen theme. Write your chosen word down the side and each line must start with the adjacent letter...it doesn't have to rhyme. Please think about spelling, punctuation and presentation too!

Week Two: Due in Wednesday 22nd January

This week, I would like you to imagine that you are explaining (explanation text) your 'passion' to a person who has never heard of it. Remember those key features and the checklist to help you.

Week Three: Due in Wednesday 29th January

We're going for amazing adjectives, divine descriptions and vivid verbs this week. Create a 'Wordle' or 'Tagxedo' for your chosen theme. Go to town with those words...

Week Four: Due in Wednesday 5th February

Somebody (how very dare they???) says your chosen theme/passion is rubbish! You have to persuade them that it's not! Write a persuasive argument convincing them how good your theme is. I would start with a list of positive bullet points...remember the structure.

Week Five: Due in Wednesday 2nd April 2014

It's story time...but a whole story takes a while SO I would like to you plan a story involving your passion then choose one paragraph to write beautifully! (if you want to write the whole story...feel free!)
